Soccer has been a big part of my life. I have been willing to give back to the game as much as it has given me, with coaching and refereeing. My strength is in soccer strategy and game understanding. I feel that too often coaches simply look for the best athletes for their teams, whereas I have realized that soccer talent comes in a lot of different packages. A good coach recognizes the different skill sets that players bring to the game, and then adapts a team strategy to maximize these skills. I also recognize that some players grow into the game, and need time and encouragement to maximize their development.
