PERSONAL STATEMENT

Short-term objectives: Learn soccer skills and tactics and have fun.

Long-term objectives: Learn all aspects of soccer in order to play at the college level. Winning games is not considered to be a primary objective. Winning is considered to be the result of the application of good ball skills and good tactics. Good ball skills demand the use of both feet with equal ability. Since many players demonstrate the use of a dominant leg at a very early age, emphasis must be added during all drills to force the use of the non-dominant or “weaker” leg. Good tactics demand the ability to think and to react quickly.
